

DESCRIPTION

Like a monogram, the lines that combine two signs to create a signature and identity, the Addo chair is composed of two clearly defined complementary parts of the same penmanship. The backrest line slowly descends and transitions into the armrest, then it suddenly twists and transitions into the legs, creating an elegant line. Like the final stroke of an elegantly balanced design, the final product is completed with a seat stretching down towards the legs in a soft transition. Lightly curved and ergonomically adapted, it retracts into the space between the lateral back vertical parts, connecting them. Upholstery and fabric provide the ergonomic seating plane added comfort. The non-upholstered version accentuates the beauty and refinement of processing the basic material – wood. The finely balanced minimalist body of the Addo chair fits into and enhances every living space. The finest quality of material and detail processing introduces an element of unostentatious luxury.

PRODUCTION PROCESS

The chair parts are made of solid wood pieces of the same length but different widths, with precisely crafted joints on CNC machines. Each piece is chosen through careful matching of wood colors and structures. The upholstered seats are covered with HR foam and upholstery for superior comfort. Certain chair collections are produced using a special wood bending technology. The technical parameters of hand-assembled chairs comply with standard requirements. Final sanding is done manually with fine-grained sandpaper, and various types of finishes enable a wide selection of the chair’s final appearance.
